DIGESTIVE CANCERS EUROPE

EuropaColon is Expanding into Digestive Cancers

“Our objective is to save the lives of an additional 250,000 Europeans every year”

Digestive Cancers Europe aims to represent at European level the digestive cancer patient community diagnosed with cancer of the oesophagus, stomach, pancreas, colon, rectum and other more rare digestive cancers

800,000 people get diagnosed with a digestive cancer every year in Europe as well as the 1.5 million digestive cancer survivors

Please join us - we will be launching this new initiative in a press conference at the ESMO Congress this October!

JOB OPPORTUNITY

We are looking for a passionate Project Coordinator

EuropaColon/Digestive Cancers Europe is the European umbrella organisation of patients with digestive cancer (oesophageal, gastric, colorectal, pancreatic and rare digestive cancers). We currently represent 44 patient organisations across Europe and we are expanding.

Today, more than 800,000 Europeans get a diagnosis of digestive cancer, and only 300,000 of them survive. It is our aspiration to reduce mortality by half by better prevention and screening programmes, and by the implementation of best practices in access, treatment and care.
